The Republic

The PATRICIANS
Nobles who owned large estates and were the descended from the founders of the city

The Citizens of Rome
Divided into 2 Classes

They all met in the assembly
Here they elected

The SENATE
When magistrates retired they became members of the senate.
They had lots of experience and gave advice to the consuls.
The Senate became very important and ended up controlling Rome

TWO CONSULS
Governed the city. They were elected for one year only and could not be elected again until 10 years had passed.
They both had to agree before a decision could be made.

The MAGISTRATES
Officials who were appointed to be judges, to look after the cities finances and other jobs

THE SENATE

The PLEBIANS
Ordinary peasants and craftsmen

TRIBUNES
Were appointed to protect the ordinary people against unfair treatment

The PATRICIANS
Nobles who owned large estates and were the descended from the founders of the city

The Citizens of Rome
Divided into 2 Classes

They all met in the assembly
Here they elected

The SENATE
When magistrates retired they became members of the senate.
They had lots of experience and gave advice to the consuls.
The Senate became very important and ended up controlling Rome

TWO CONSULS
Governed the city. They were elected for one year only and could not be elected again until 10 years had passed.
They both had to agree before a decision could be made.

The MAGISTRATES
Officials who were appointed to be judges, to look after the cities finances and other jobs

TRIBUNES
Were appointed to protect the ordinary people against unfair treatment

By Mr McGuiness
www.SchoolHistory.co.uk